A GULTURAL MOSAIC OF CHARM & ELEGANCE.

Situated at the centre of the Northcliffe, St. Clair West and Hillcrest villages, our St. Clair Village community stands proudly between Corsa Italia and Forest Hill.

The reinvention of this area serves as a fitting backdrop to our bold architecture and warm community situated on the north side of St. Clair Ave W. Appealing to the city's talented and up-and-coming residents, this brings to life a vision to further develop a rich and inspiring culture of togetherness.

The Barns, a designated heritage structure, is a community cultural hub in the Wychwood neighbourhood. Operated by Artscape since 2008, the family-oriented haunt is famed for its year-round Farmer's Market, every Saturday, featuring local, sustainable, organic and artisanal products. An inspired meeting place, The Barns is overflowing with art thanks to 26 artist live/work studios and 15 artist work studios. With a colourful calendar of events, you'll spend plenty of time here.

DAVID OWEN HAS A REFRESHINGLY UNIQUE TAKE ON SEAFOOD, HIS BUSINESS, AND WHAT THAT MEANS TO HIS GUSTOMERS. David Owen is the co-owner of the popular Toronto seafood market De La Mer and we had the pleasure of sitting down with him to find out more about the popular fish market.

Q: You have a number of locations across the city. When did you arrive in this neighbourhood?A: We opened this location 18 months ago.

Q: Can you tell us a little bit about yourself and De La Mer?
A: My partner and I have opened stores in neighbourhoods where we saw a need for a seafood market. There are currently four De La Mer locations in Toronto. Our background is in cooking. We're not fishermen. We're not from the east or west coast. We're not steeped in fishing lore. We don't have some magical connection to the sea. Our aim has always been to demystify seafood. So many people are terrified of cooking fish and seafood and it doesn't have to be this way. It doesn't have to be scary. It can be fun and easy. Part of what we do at De La Mer is show our customers that it's not hard to cook fish well. We do that through our in-store recipe cards, our blog posts, the way we train our staff. We're passionate about sustainable seafood. We can explain to customers the difference between organically raised fish and non. We believe that it's important for people to know that you don't have to spend a fortune to have great fish. Yes, black cod is delicious, but you know what, so is red snapper.

Q: Why did you choose St. Clair We as your next stop?

A: It's vibrant, it's diverse, there are so many young families, which has always been something we've considered when opening a location. Another thing we look for is, are there other complementary businesses here? Can someone walk down the street and buy everything they need? Can they get their bread, the vegetables, their meats, their fish all in one place? That's something we look for when considering a new location and we found that on St. Clair West.

"There's such a spirit of heritage here but at the same time there's so much sharing."

Q: What's so special about St. Clair West?

A: There's a great cross-section of people living here. It's very welcoming. Neighbours really know neighbours. We always work to partner with others in the community, whether it's a local school or a sports team or a community centre. Creating those partnerships here has been so easy because there's an established sense of partnering.

Q: Can you describe the St. Clair Ave W. vibe?

A: It's a neighbourhood that's very consciously local and you don't always see that. People here really seem to support small businesses. There are so many rich cultures that have roots in the neighbourhood: Italian, Portuguese, Jamaican. There's such a spirit of heritage here but at the same time there's so much sharing.

2: Any thoughts for someone thinking about moving here?

A: It's warm. It's welcoming, It's very easy to become a part of the neighbourhood. Everyone seems to know everyone. Also, everything you need is right here. It's a little bi like a European small town, where there's a high street and everything you need is on that one street.

NESTLED NEAR A HISTORIC FIRE STATION, KRAVE COFFEE IS THE DREAM PROJECT OF OWNER CALAY HALL.

Calay is passionate about coffee, her shop and keeping things local.

Q: How long have you, and Krave, been in the St. Clair West neighbourhood?

A: I opened Krave on July 3, 2015. I've lived in the neighbourhood since May of that same year. I had friends who used to live on Atlas Ave prior to that, so I knew the neighbourhood.

Q: Can you tell us a little bit about yourself?

A: I've lived in Toronto since 1998. I first went to U of T for Life Sciences but I switched to a Commerce Degree at Ryerson University. The focus was hospitality and tourism, but my first job after university was in finance. I moved to the Cayman Islands for four years and when I came back to Toronto, I noticed how many third wave coffee shops had opened up since I left.

Q: What's a third wave coffee shop?

A: The first wave happened when coffee started being served in restaurants en masse. You had donut stores and diners and places like that. The second wave happened with Starbucks and Second Cup, the gourmet specialty coffee shops, but ones that were still chains, still dealing with the mass product of coffee. The third wave happened when you started to see local independent coffee shops spring up. These coffee shops treated coffee more like wine; focusing on smaller batches and greater care taken with the beans. This approach led to a more direct relationship with the farmer, basically cutting out the middle man. This not only makes better coffee because more care is taken with the bean but it's a better deal for the farmers as well. Fair Trade is one thing but Direct Trade is even better.

Q: What made you think St. Clair West was where you wanted to be located? A: I was just checking around, looking at different neighbourhoods and this one seemed right. There wasn't really any other coffee shop in the immediate vicinity. I fell in love with the building. It's old and beautiful. There were lots of young families moving into the neighbourhood.

Q: What makes St. Clair West so special?

A: It's a pocket in the big city. When you're here, you feel like you're in a smaller city. Everyone is so approachable; the people and the businesses. There's such a mix of old world and new places. So many businesses in the neighbourhood are independent. We've got everything here. It's a real community. Everything you need in your life is right around the corner. People work together. I've partnered with so many other small businesses in the neighbourhood. It's been great.

Q: Is there a spirit of St. Clair, and if

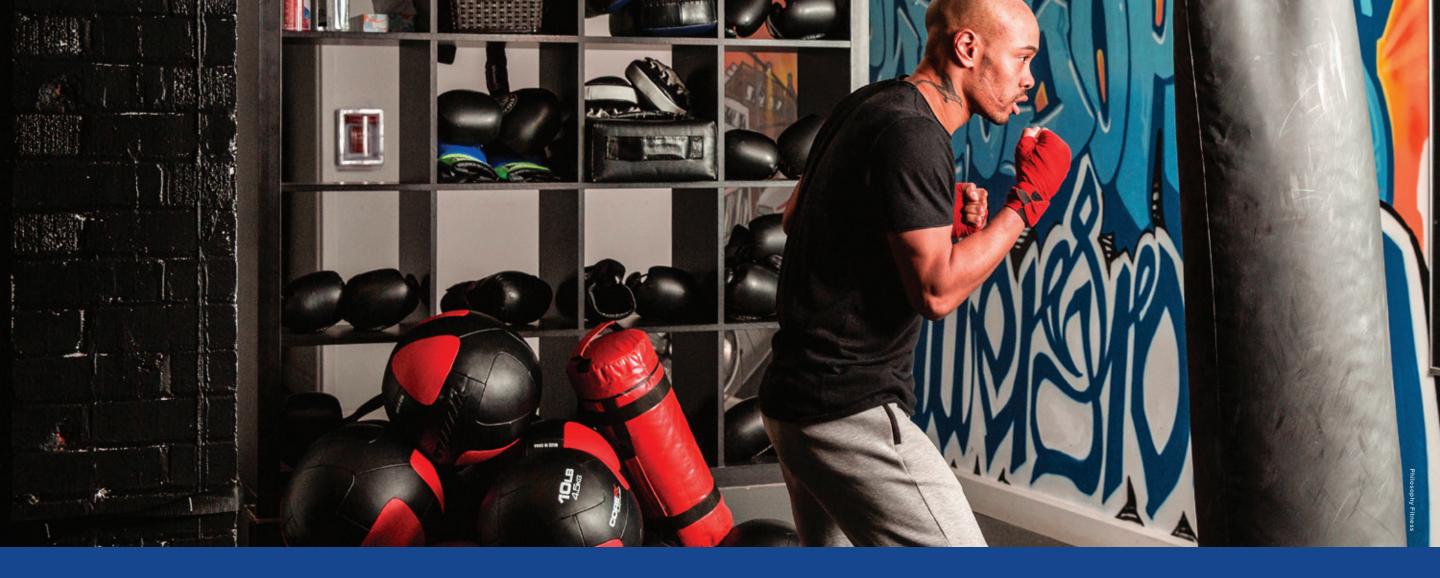

Q: What would you say to someone who was thinking about moving to the neighbourhood?

PHIL ORTWEIN BELIEVES FITNESS SHOULD WORK EVERY MUSGLE IN YOUR BODY, ESPECIALLY YOUR MIND.

Phil Ortwein never imagined that he'd be the owner of a boutique fitness centre, but that's okay because rolling with the punches has always been part of his grand philosophy.

Before I begin, your business is Philosophy Fitness and our name is Phil. I'm assuming that's purely coincidental.

A: [laughs] Yes, well, I used to be a mobile fitness trainer, travelled around to peoples' homes and businesses and offered personal training. When I decided that I wanted to set up a bricks and mortar business, I asked my clients what should call it. They named it Philosophy because I was alway eiling them about how important it is to have a philosophy when it comes to training. So, yes, it is purely coincidental.

Q: How long have you been in the St. Clair West area? A: Lopened three years ago.

: And how did all of this happen

A: Well, I've been a personal trainer now for 15 years. I've lived in Toronto for 10 years. I'm originally from Horseshoe Valley. I went to University of Western Ontario and did a couble major in Health and Psychology. I originally planned to work in a hospital setting. I didn't know exactly what I'd do but that's the world I thought I would be going into. I started training on a part-time basis and just sort of went from there. When I finished school, I went to work for one of those big-box gyms. Well, It wasn't a big box then, but it is now. It was much smaller. On the suggestion of my boss, the owner, I took over as the business director and that's when I knew I found my place. Running the business side of fitness was perfect for me, and I'd never thought of it before. I always planned to be on the service side of training but it was the business that really spoke to me. And that's when I started my own business as a mobile trainer. It was great but I reached a point where I couldn't grow my business any larger. Working with one client at a time, and when you factor in travelling all over the city, it just became impossible to get any bigger without opening a gym.

Q: Why did you choose St. Clair West? A: I didn't originally plan to open a gym here. I was just looking for a gym for myself, to work out. I looked around and there was nothing that was really working for me, nothing that incorporated a philosophy. So, I decided to create the kind of gym where I would want to be a member.

"I've never seen a community that supports small businesses like this one. The people who live here really like to stay in the area. That's why there are so many small businesses along St. Clair."

Q: What is it about this neighbourhood that makes it so unique?
A: I've never seen a community that supports small businesses like this one. The people who live here really like to stay in the area. That's why there are so many small businesses along St. Clair.

Q: How would you describe the spirit of St. Clair?

A: It's diverse, friendly, warm. There's such a sense of community here even though everyone is so different. Right now, I'm standing looking out the front window of my business and there are just so many different people, from all walks of life. We've got old buildings and new condos, working-class homes and mansions. There's just so much diversity and that creates such a strong sense of community.

Q: Any final thoughts?A: Come and check it out. There are so many cool, new businesses opening. If you're thinking of moving here, get in now.

CANDEREL'S VISION ON THE FUTURE OF ST. CLAIR WEST

We strongly believe that every new residential development should be a source of pride for the community it serves. Our proven approach with each and every project is to enhance every neighbourhood socially and aesthetically, while taking the utmost care to use the space and surrounding resources efficiently and responsibly. This level of commitment is what makes us one of the most celebrated developers in Canada. Canderel is recognized for its landmark architecture and growing communities of socially and environmentally positive enterprises. From coast to coast we have marketed and sold over 7,500 condominiums to satisfied homeowners. We are experts at finding optimal locations and helping to create thriving communities throughout the city. As the benchmark for integrating the highest quality standards with award winning design, our residential and mixed-use developments continue to stand out in Toronto as landmarks in the city.

Q&A with Brett Miller, CEO Canderel

Q: What attracted Canderel to the neighbourhood?

A: We always look to uncover neighbourhoods with potential that hasn't been fully realized. This is a great part of town with a pedestrianfriendly main street well served by transit. There's been a recent surge of young families and new businesses and we think this community energy will continue to grow.

Q: What can people moving to the neighbourhood expect to discover?

A: It's family-oriented, with great schools, parks, and local amenities. There's strong pride and closeness. The popular Wychwood Barns Farmers Market draws people every Saturday, year-round. The neighbourhood offers so much but is also close to the city's core.

Q: What is the vision for the project?

A: We see it as the first of a collection of mid-rise buildings that will make up St.Clair Village. Focusing on a longterm vision, we want to keep a balance between buildings that are right for the community and creating new options for the growing demand in the area, particularly from young families and parents who may be downsizing.

Q: How will 900 St. Clair West fit into the existing neighbourhood?

A: We always aim for a gracious fit. People have lived here their entire lives and a wave of younger people is moving in, injecting a modern vibrancy. Our design pays homage to this. Taking cues from the architecture of neighbouring houses, our 12-storey residence is clad in red and brown brick with dark bronze window mullions. The intention is for the building to look as if it's always been there. Another main driver for the design, was to enhance street life along St. Clair West with a dynamic boutique retail experience.

Q: What is unique about this project?

A: It's a boutique building with only 122 residences offering a feeling of exclusiveness, sophistication and style, without compromising on comfort. Suite layouts accommodate a range of demographics. We will be offering a large percentage with three bedrooms and highly desirable corner layouts. This development is not a one-size-fits-all approach. We are also creating the opportunity to combine select units.

Few projects in the area have the same level of design, amenities and finishes. We are excited to be introducing a temperature-controlled wine storage in one of the lounges. The rooftop amenity space has an expansive dining and living area with unobstructed views of the city. The gym will offer access to the latest fitness technologies including TRX props and cardio equipment with built-in tablets for live class streaming. In sync with the community's renewed urban energy, residential interiors tie the old and the new with sleek lines and refined textures.

Q: What is Canderel's approach to development?

A: Our focus is Canadian urban markets. With a close ear to the ground in Toronto, we were instrumental in transforming Yonge and College, redeveloping the block between Bay and Yonge from College to Gerrard. We also led the revitalization on King West with DNA 1, 2 +3, which now serves as a vibrant destination. We strongly believe in the importance of a street-level approach. We pay close attention to scale, materials, the intimate appeal and approachability of a building, as well as the thoughtful integration of retail and residential in the design and programming of those spaces.
